Levitt PUD project brings Citizen protest

NEW LENOX — The planned unit development proposed by Levitt and Sons west of the Lincoln-Way Shopping Center, came in for another lengthy discussion by the Concerned Village Citizens (CVC) before the village board Monday night, June 5.

The land, approximately 90 acres, plus about 18 more acres along U.S. 30 East of I-90 owned by the Barr family was brought into the village after pre-annexation agreements had been signed. Levitt and Sons proposed to build a planned unit development, with some single family homes, but mostly multiple family dwellings of various types. There are no commercial places.

The pre-annexation with Levitt was signed last December and his plans for the development submitted to the village planning commission of which Louis Loebe is chairman.

Under a planned unit development the streets are built and maintained by the property owners and are regarded as private property, except they do not serve as sanctuary for criminals and wrong doers sought by police, it was explained.

Members of the plan commission found that some of the streets proposed by Levitt were too narrow and there were parts of the layout which would hinder easy access by the fire department or rescue teams.

According to the report, Levitt's people have agreed to widen and change the streets complained of and comply with other requests for changes.

The developer did agree to pay the grade school board $100 per unit to reimburse the people of the district for the additional expenses the development will bring on the grade school system. Lincoln-Way High School got nothing.

The Levitt people told the plan commission that high school Supt. Joe Kruzich had written a letter to the effect that Lincoln-Way was not in need of any assistance nor was it asking for any contribution.

Supt. Kruzich has branded this as false and has repeatedly asked Kenneth Campbell, the Levitt representative to meet with him to discuss the contribution question but so far no one from the Levitt organization has seen fit to do so, the superintendent said. The high school is asking approximately $40 per unit.

At the meeting of the village board last Wednesday night Kruzich publicly asked Campbell when he would meet him. Kruzich received no answer nor had he heard from Campbell as of the end of last week.

Kruzich said Campbell never came up with the letter Kruzich was purported to have written, saying Lincoln-Way High School District was not interested in any contribution from the developer to aid its building program.

The plan commissions meetings have been attended by the CVC, whose spokesmen voiced opposition to various aspects of the development. At the last regular meeting of the plan group a member of the auditing firm employed by the village was to make a report on the financial impact the planned unit development might have on the village. However, there was a misunderstanding between Campbell and the auditor relative to valuations of property which made the report of no value to the commission.

Wednesday night Robert Danehy, one of the CVC spokesmen, offered — without charge — the services of the CVC economists. They are Dr. Robert M. Auddell, chairman of the department of economics, Loyola University, Chicago; Dr. Louis P. Cain, an economist instructor at Northwestern University and a specialist in urban affairs, and David Mirza, an economist and cash flow expert.

Danehy drew a laugh from the audience when he said that when asked if they were beginning construction before plan approval the Levitt people said they were just preparing a site for a construction trailer.

"You will note" Danehy said "one of the most elaborate construction sites ever known to man has been developed at the Levitt site. This construction trailer site encompasses 30 acres, has graded areas every few yards that look amazingly like homesites, and other strips that look very similar to road-beds."

Danehy also charged that the Levitt People had "stated something to the effect that they would remove only those trees that interfered with construction" but has stripped the land bare.

Joe Davies, another CVC spokesman, introduced a resident of Bollingbrook who is unhappy with his lot as the buyer of a unit of a multiple family dwelling. He complained that the developer retains control of the Homeowners Association and that the buyers were not informed as to what they might expect until the deal was in the closing stage.

Village officials have indicated they think the CVC are far afield in concerning itself with the details that arise between buyer and seller of a living unit.

They see their concern should center on layout and building of the streets, that the proper utilities are installed in accordance with village specifications and that the living units are constructed according to the provisions of the building code.

An associate broker in the Joliet realty firm, Mark Uselak who was introduced by Davies, said that the plans he has seen for the Levitt development at New Lenox do not measure up to the firm's developments at Schaumburg and Naperville. There are no recreational facilities in the New Lenox plans he said.

Uselak also said that according to the plans homes at the New Lenox development are to be built on slabs and such homes are slow movers in the market. Uselak stated that the FHA "is currently taking back million dollar projects which consist of high density, popular priced dwelling units, sold on low downpayments and I believe this trend is likely to continue."

Wayne Johnson, village attorney, pointed out that all of the meetings between the village board, the planning commission and the developers have been public ones as required.

Johnson said that the annexation agreement entered into last December was the result of many conferences and joint efforts of himself and the attorney for Levitt.

"Are you trying to get us to re-open the pre-annexation agreement as it is written?" Trustee Lutz Guenther inquired. He had no affirmative answer from any of the CVC.

All indications point to a decision soon on the proposed plans.

Citizens raise ire of plan chief, meeting comes to abrupt end

By John Ostensberg

NEW LENOX — A special meeting of the New Lenox Plan Commission came to an abrupt end at exactly 9:30 p.m. Monday, when chairman Louis Loebe angrily declared the session adjourned.

Immediately prior to the adjournment, Loebe had been polling commission members in preparation for a vote on zoning of property for the proposed Greenbriar subdivision. His anger flared when a citizens' group present for the meeting broke into laughter at his reference to a "gentleman's agreement" between the commission and representatives of Levitt Residential Communities, developers of the controversial Greenbriar area.

Loebe explained after the meeting that he had called for adjournment because of complications which have not been reconciled between the commission and representatives of Levitt. It appeared at the time of his action, however, that Loebe's move toward adjournment had been motivated solely by his disgust over the continual objections being raised by members of the Concerned Village Citizens (CVC), a group opposed to the construction of Greenbriar. He had taken his action independently of the other commission members, without asking for or receiving a motion for adjournment.

A sizeably smaller group of CVC members was present for Monday's meeting than has been present for prior commission meetings. Representatives of CVC complained that the special meeting had not been properly publicized.

The meeting began with an explanation of a revised report by Robert C. Thornton, of the firm Grumley, Dicke, Thornton & Clark, Certified Public Accountants, on the financial impact of the subdivision on the New Lenox community. An earlier report, submitted by Thornton at a June 5 meeting of the commission, had been found to be based on erroneous figures.

Thornton explained that his revised report was based on the following construction plans as submitted by Levitt for the five-year building project.

The first year of building would see the construction of 40 single units and 80 quadruplexes, for a total of 120 units; for the second year, construction of 50 single units and 90 quadruplexes, for a total of 140 units; third year, construction of 50 single units, 100 quadruplexes and 100 apartments, for a total of 250 units; fourth year, construction of 120 quadruplexes and 100 apartments, for a total of 220 units.

At the end of the five-year building period, Thornton said, there would be an addition to the New Lenox community of 140 single units, 510 quadruplexes and 300 apartments, for a total of 950 units.

He then submitted the following tally of assessed value on the proposed subdivision: first year, $1,560,000; second year, $3,651,000; third year, $7,191,070; fourth year, $10,564,730; and fifth year, $14,408,820. He explained that this assessed value was determined on Levitt's proposed selling price of the units: $30,000 on single dwellings; $24,000 on quadruplexes; and $20,000 on apartments.

Thornton estimated that Greenbriar's revenue to the village would follow the following scale: first year, $50,586; second year, $90,505; third year, $153,951; fourth year, $192,542; and fifth year, $243,200. He explained that this revenue would be in opposition to the following expenses: first year, $13,186; second year, $12,818; third year, $26,125; fourth year, $36,265; and fifth year, $35,951. He added that the net excess to the village would be: first year, $37,400; second year, $77,687; third year, $127,826; fourth year, $156,000; and fifth year, $207,249.

The report further states that in addition to the above, revenue will be directed to the village from Motor Fuel Tax and garbage collection. This estimated revenue is as follows: first year, $4,720 from Motor Fuel and $600 from garbage; second year, $9,781 from Motor Fuel and $1,842 from garbage; third year, $17,364 from Motor Fuel and $3,672 from garbage; fourth year, $24,045 from Motor Fuel and $5,799 from garbage; and fifth year, $30,726 from Motor Fuel and $8,868 from garbage.

Citizen objection began when Martin Flanagan, a New Lenox resident and developer, argued that the estimated assessed value on the property was in error because estimated selling prices on the units were much higher than is realistic. When Loebe asked Flanagan to support his objection, Flanagan began directing questions toward Kenneth Campbell, representative of Levitt.

Flanagan quizzed Campbell regarding construction plans for the units, asking how many baths were planned for the single dwellings, whether the homes were to be of brick or frame construction, and whether garages were to be attached. Campbell refused to answer the questions, explaining that he did not have the building plans before him and was unwilling to trust his memory. He said that Levitt planned to construct homes of varying value on the property and that the estimated selling prices were averages in each category.

Joe Davies, chairman of the ad hoc CVC, then presented Campbell with a picture of a quadruplex and asked whether the Levitt homes were to be similar to the one shown. When Campbell again refused to answer, Davies explained to the commission that the pictured quadruplex was located on similar property in the New Lenox area, offered numerous extra details, and yet sold at a price far below the estimated Levitt price.

Another village resident quizzed Thornton as to the estimated revenue would be available to the village at the time of necessary improvements to meet the Greenbriar addition. Thornton responded that there would be a definite problem of cash flow. He explained that the tax lag would mean assessed value at Dec. 31, 1972 would not be payable to the village until June 1974.

Following these objections, Loebe proceeded to prepare the commission for a vote on the proposed zoning. He explained that there had been five specific areas of complications standing in the path of approved zoning, but that Levitt had made amends in all regards. According to Loebe, the five areas and the corresponding agreements by Levitt were as follows:

1) The commission had objected that the additional flow of traffic from the subdivision onto Haven Avenue would be too great for the present 18 feet of paved surface. Levitt has agreed to re-pave Haven Avenue to the width of 24 feet for that section bordering the subdivision.

2) The commission had objected that the planned width of the proposed Manor Drive of 27 feet would be too narrow. Levitt has agreed to widen Manor Drive to 31 feet.

3) The commission had objected that plans for Phase I of the development would surpass the 10.9 density per gross acre called for. Levitt had agreed to reduce Phase I by one floor plan.

4) The commission had objected that the proposed quadruplexes would be too close as they faced one another across their private street entrances. Levitt had agreed to enlarge the private streets to 24 feet in width and to set each quadruplex back 22 feet from the street, for a total of 68 feet of separation between entrances.

5) Levitt had agreed to guarantee five acres of land to the park district for the purpose of a recreational area.

Loebe then reminded the board that it was considering granting of an R-3 zoning with variation for the Planned Unit Development. He asked the commission members "Is there anything we have asked Levitt for that they have not complied with?"

It was in response to this question that commission member John Francis began the objections which led to the adjournment of the meeting.

Francis began his remarks by explaining that the water lines in and approaching the Greenbriar area were not sufficient to accommodate needs of the Fire Protection District. Francis admonished the commission to have the foresight to realize that the fire department would have to become more metropolitan and less urban with the addition of 3,600 residents to the village. He warned that this would mean the laying of new water lines within a few years unless the commission demanded larger mains to be located at this time.

Francis' more potent remarks came in regard to Section 9.65 of the zoning code, however. He explained that this section called for all developers to maintain a "relationship of compatibility with neighbors." Levitt, he said, had refused to maintain such a relationship with its proposed neighbors. He cited two incidents to support his contention.

Francis said that the Methodist Church, which has a campground immediately east of the Greenbriar area, had repeatedly asked Levitt to meet and discuss safeguards for the natural setting of the campground. Levitt, he said, had refused to meet with church representatives and ultimately it became necessary for the church to hire an attorney in order to protect its property from environmental damage resulting from the leveling of ground for the subdivision. This did not represent a "relationship of compatibility," Francis said.

Furthermore, he said, Levitt had continually delayed meeting with Lincoln-Way Community High School Supt. Joe Kruzich to discuss a financial contribution to the school. He argued that this did not represent the good relationship called for in the code.

Campbell responded to both points, arguing that Levitt had never refused to attend any meeting that had been set up. Kruzich then objected and demanded that Campbell "publicly set a date" for meeting with him to discuss the school problem. Campbell declined.

It was then that Loebe again asked the commission to consider the actual zoning, explaining that the commission, Campbell and Kruzich had a "gentlemen's agreement" to settle the problem. When the laughter began, Loebe asked the CVC members if they were implying that the commission, Kruzich and Campbell were not gentlemen. CVC members shouted back that Kruzich and Francis were gentlemen. Loebe then adjourned the meeting.

Frauleins plan dairy fun

FRANKFORT — The Frankfort Frauleins 4-H Club have a number of things going in their observance of Dairy Month — which lasts all of June. One of the highlights will be a family potluck dinner June 25 in Community Park. All the dishes will be made with some dairy product in them, according to the plan.

A dairy farmer and his wife will be crowned Dairy King and Queen but their identity is to be kept secret until the act of crowning, it was said.

Today, June 14, the Frauleins will tour Weber's Dairy in Joliet. On June 17 a dairy display will be set up in Ed's Market, on Oak Street, Frankfort. Such a display was shown last week at Ordman's Park & Shop in Mokena.

Dist. 140 may buy mobile units

TINLEY PARK — John Bannes, superintendent of School District 140, notified the board that the district had received a federal grant of $2,500 for a special summer program for children who are educationally deprived, the program is geared to the child who is a slow learner with an I. Q. high enough to keep him or her out of special education classes. The program will be held in the Fernway School building.

The superintendent also reported that most teachers that are applying for employment this year have ten to fifteen years teaching experience.

The board discussed the possibility of purchasing two mobile units for storage, or offices from District 149, Bannes said, "we foresee eventually running out of space, if we submit a low bid on the mobile units and they are acceptable it would not be a bad idea." Building committee member Wayne Rath suggested that the board wait because the Chicago Board of Education is also putting mobiles up for sale and these could also be looked at. Herbert Walker said, he was not interested in spending money on mobiles. Walker and Rath were asked to look into the situation of the mobiles. Walker suggested that the board put a hold on looking at the mobiles until the next board meeting June 22nd. Superintendent Bannes was asked to find out when the closing date on bids for the mobiles will be.

The board went into executive session to discuss teachers salaries and land sale. Following the session Board President David Liedtke announced the new salaries for three principals and the superintendent. John Bannes will receive $23,000 for the 1972-1973 school year. Principal John McCartney will receive $15,840, Marilyn Halpin $14,520, and Bill Maciejewski $17,900.

Three new teachers were approved by the board, Kathleen Gausselein, Barbara Hecht, and Joanne Pusateri. The salaries for the newly approved teachers are still under negotiations.

Bids on the life safety work will be opened at the June 22nd board meeting.

One thousand dollars was transferred from the educational fund to the Imprest (petty cash) fund, the funds will be on deposit at the Orland State Bank. The fund was increased from $500. A congratulatory letter was sent to Miss Sherrie Balz, on her musical and scholastic accomplishments. Letters were also sent to Miss Teresa Garand and Miss Penny McCord congratulating them on their science fair awards.

Letters were sent to state legislators concerning contributions to school districts by land developers.

Ken Botts citizens committee chairman asked the board to give the committee all information on any building program, prior to any referendum, preferably six to eight months in advance, so the information can be studied. The committee asked that even discarded ideas be available to the group so they can see what direction the board is taking.

Board member Wayne Rath told Botts as soon as we have something of substance we can get back to you. Botts told the board that if they do come up with a building program and the citizens committee doesn't agree, we may not back you up.

The Tinley Park board has agreed to go ahead with an industrial park within the 140 school district.

Bremen GOP elects president

BREMEN TOWNSHIP — Stan Magiera was elected president of the Regular Bremen Township Republican Organization at its May meeting.

In accepting this position Magiera said to outgoing president Bob Busch, that he would strive to fulfill his obligation as well as Busch had the last two year.

Future organization activities include a family picnic for Bremen residents at Yankee Woods Aug. 13, and the Bremen Republican dinner-dance Oct. 14 at Cavallini's Restaurant.

Horse owners lose out

CHICAGO — Residents who live in the unincorporated areas of Cook County lost a battle to keep their horses this week.

Horse owners in the unincorporated area of the township received citations more than a year ago for violations of the 1960 county zoning ordinance which requires a minimum of five acres to operate a stable in an area zoned for single family residences.

Rather than give up their horses two residents of the Midlothian Fields Subdivision, Daniel Volanti, 13725 S. Lawler, and Dominic Terlizzi, 13610 S. LaVerne, took the fight to court.

Last week associate circuit court judge Nicholas Bohling ruled that the ordinance was constitutional and denied the horse owners' motion to dismiss the case, finding the horse owners guilty of violating the ordinance, and fined them each $25. The Terlizzis have removed their horse from the premises and the Volantis are planning to move to Wisconsin.

The ruling set a precedent because other horse owners who received violations are scheduled to appear in court later this year.

Gabriel Barrett was the attorney for the horse owners, and assistant state's attorney Michael Saken prosecuted the case.

Last April Barrett moved to dismiss the complaints on the basis that the persons cited were not in violation of the ordinance since it dealt with lots recorded after the effective of the horse ordinance in 1960.

Barrett argued that since all of Midlothian Fields was recorded as a subdivision in 1944, prior to 1960, the use of land for stables was not barred.

Saken said that the ordinance referred to non-conforming uses already existing before 1960, and that homes in the subdivision were built and occupied, some by horse owners, after 1960.

Barrett had also argued that the ordinance did not define "stable" and was "arbitrary" because under five acres no horses are allowed, but over five acres there is no limit to the number of allowable horses.

Saken argued that the common meaning of the word must be accepted, and that the line must be drawn someplace.

Barrett has also argued that the section of the ordinance was unconstitutional because it was vague, indefinite, uncertain, arbitrary and unreasonable and could not be clearly understood by a man subject to its penalty.

Saken argued that "Lawyers always disagree on the meaning of the law but this doesn't mean that every law is unclear."

An appeal is still possible within the next 30 days. If anyone wants to take the time and spend the money to do it.

Ordinance a sticky issue

BREMEN TOWNSHIP — Confusion of a new county ordinance requiring county vehicle stickers has resulted in the extension of the sticker deadline until July 1.

Under the new ordinance all residents of the unincorporated areas of Cook County are required to purchase a sticker for all motor vehicles.

Police will issue warning tickets until the July 1 deadline. After that date citations will carry fines from $5 to $100.

The ordinance is being challenged by a group of residents from Mt. Prospect. The residents have gone to court claiming the ordinance is unconstitutional because it is discriminatory since it only applies to the unincorporated area of the county.

The case was continued last week until June 28 on the request of the attorney for the plaintiffs, Edward Berman.

Funds which have been received from sales of the stickers to date are being placed in a separate fund so they can be returned in the event the ordinance is declared unconstitutional.

The cost of the stickers is $10 for vehicles of 35 horsepower or more; $15 for vehicles of more than 35 horsepower; and $5 for motorcycles. Stickers for trucks range from $15 to $95.

Applications for the stickers can be picked up at all county Sheriff's offices, at several village halls in the area, or by calling 321-6240.

Decision near for Fernway annexation

By Gertrude Gallagher

ORLAND PARK — Judge Harry Comerford has the "ball" and with any kind of luck the issue of whether Fernway will be allowed to annex to Orland Park will be resolved on Tuesday, June 27.

The marathon proceedings had a new entry last Wednesday, June 7, when attorneys and residents appeared in court. Ronald Glink, attorney for the Village of Westhaven who is objecting to the annexation, withdrew three of 10 objections; namely, those pertaining to insufficient voter signatures; the contention that there were insufficient signatures of property owners; and the objection that a state highway divided the parcels of property seeking annexation.

Two other objections were left in the judge's hands for decision. The question of whether or not the property was contiguous to Orland Park was referred to Judge Comerford who was furnished maps for his study.

The objection referred to by Glink as "unity of purposes and utilities" also was referred to the judge with the attorneys' stipulating (agreeing) to the facts; i.e., water and sewers are furnished by Citizens Utility; no services are furnished Fernway by either Orland Park or Westhaven; fire protection comes from the Orland Fire Protection District; police protection is given by the Cook County Police.

Leonard Carriere, attorney for the citizens of Fernway, will file an additional brief answering the points of contiguity and "unity of purpose."

Thomas Kerr, associate village attorney for Orland Park, was present at the hearing. According to Kerr the decision may well rest on the judge's finding on the contiguity issue.

Letters

Editor:

James H. Blankenship, District 145 elementary school board member, is to be complimented, I believe, for explaining to the public (via the Fence Post, May 17th) the stand of the board in not granting a public hearing to a professional who requested that the hearing be public.

What I know about public hearings in school personnel problems, I learned the hard way - through experience! Also, I have read the school code. Most illuminating of all, however, was the opportunity of attending the Illinois Association of School Boards convention in November of 1972.

I attended four sessions on "due process." They were conducted by outstanding authorities in the field of "due process" in school personnel matters. Newell Jenkins, of Klein, Thorpe, Kassan and Jenkins, Chicago; Jerome Robbins, of Robbins, Nicholas and Lifton, Chicago; Louis Ancel and Marvin Glink and Stewart Diamond, of Ancel, Stonesifer, Glink and Levin; and Simon L. Friedman, Legal Consultant of the Illinois Association of School Boards were participants in the four meetings. The speakers said that non-tenure personnel, as well as tenure personnel, should be accorded public hearings if they request public hearings. If a board does not give public hearings, when asked, there is always some suspicion as to whether or not the motives of the board and administration are pure.

In the school code, 24-12 spells out the requirement that tenure teachers must be given the privilege of a public hearing.

There is no such statement made about dismissals or non-renewal of contract of non-tenure teachers, for the simple reason, according to the foregoing authorities on school law, that at the time that portion of the code was written, non-tenure personnel were not given hearings at all for dismissal or non-renewal of contract! Now they are given hearings. It will not be long before boards are told these people shall have the privilege of public hearings.

However, it is the intent of the law that public hearings shall always be held when there are problems involving matters pertaining to contracts. Non-tenure teachers may have hearings about a much less important matter - details of salary - if the teachers request hearings, and those hearings will be conducted "as hereinafter provided in the case of certain dismissals or removals." (24-11) A salary hearing of a non-tenure teacher must be public at the request of the teacher. There is no reason to suppose, according to the lawyers speaking at the due process meetings, that there was any discrimination against non-tenure teachers in the matter of their privilege in having hearings before the board, and in the matter of their privilege in having public hearings if they so desire. There are one or two lawyers in the area who seem to be bucking modern trends and authoritative advice in this matter. Most hearings are conducted publicly, and a board who does not comply with the wishes of the professional involved, may conceivably find itself in something of a legal problem itself, if it fails to follow accepted process procedures.

Other suggestions of the due process meetings included a very pointed statement about the practice of withdrawing a teacher from the classroom when any suspension or dismissal proceedings are begun. This can only be done if the doctor says the professional is a danger to the children in the classroom, according to the lawyers on the panels.

Board members should remember, if their lawyer is wrong, they are the ones who will be in trouble - not the lawyer! The lawyer will get his fee, either way! A lawyer is allowed the privilege of being wrong. But the school board must take the responsibility for any mistakes their lawyer makes!

DOROTHY H. KOCHER

Editor:

After 17 years of teaching I can vouch for the importance of early planning and action when school buildings and educational equipment are needed. This was brought home to me by what many children suffered as a result of no planning, poor planning, or procrastination in the face of a critical need for teaching facilities.

Because of the dilatory tactics designed to impede the passage of bond referenda in certain districts, children were forced to sit in a hot stuffy room over a firehouse; to attend gym classes in a small room that doubled as a library, which was lost completely as a gym and library when an additional classroom was needed; to attend school in double shifts - all to the detriment of the academic progress of the children.

I bring the benefit of my past experience to the citizens of School District 159 at this time because they will be in a position to avoid some of the situations described above by a timely decision in a referendum on June 3 for the issuance of $750,000 in bonds for the expansion of educational facilities.

The Board of Education of District 159 feels that the approval of this bond issue is imperative at this time in order to provide the educational facilities which will be needed shortly because of the influx of new neighbors. At the present time, the people of District 159 are witnessing the construction of homes at three different sites within the district boundaries, which encompasses an area of 17 1/2 miles. Although the present population of Sieden Prairie School is approximately 300, Superintendent Donald Tesmond's projections indicate that this number will be doubled by the time school re-opens this September.

The passage of the bond issue will provide funds for (1) an addition to Sieden Prairie School, (2) the placement of four relocatable classrooms adjacent to the school, and (3) the construction of a new school in the Lakewood subdivision of Richton Park.

As a teacher who knows what can happen in a school district when those responsible fail to act positively on a building program, I urge the citizens of School District 159 to vote YES on the $275,000 bond referendum which will be held on June 3. Timely action will save increased costs later, of a school program that is rated highly in the area.

I'm writing this letter because I think it's terrible the way a lot of parents, that could, don't take the time to attend our Little League games.

These managers and coaches work very hard with these boys, giving up their valuable time, and I'm sure there's a lot of other things they could be doing, but they care about helping these kids.

It's so gratifying to both boys and coaches to see parents attend these games. It does wonders for their moral. They try so much harder when they have an audience to play for.

If these coaches can give their time to teach our sons to play ball, can't we as parents return the time to watch.

An open letter to parents of the Little League or Lonely League players.

Have you ever seen your son's face beaming with a grin that could warm your heart till you thought it would burst, or the tears in his eyes when he has struck out twice in a row; or the rubbing of his tender rear-end cause he just stole second base and had to slide all the way cause the pitcher spotted him.

Then mister, you've never seen your son hit a baseball and run like the dickens to what seemed to him that far-away first base. Too bad you weren't there to cheer him on—but it was a hot day and you and mom worked all day in this heat and you deserve to take off your shoes, lay on the couch, watch TV, wait for dinner, or sit and relax at the pool, or even have a nice cool one at the corner tavern. And what's even more important, you've got a good boy that can take care of himself.

And, oh, those wonderful coaches, let's not forget them. A good thing they've all got easy jobs during the day, there not even the least bit tired when they get home - yeah, they sure ride the gravy train playing with all the kids in the evening. It gives a parent a good feeling inside to know someone's there to give his son a good pat on the back for his efforts with the team. Yes sir, I've got a good boy - why I'd give that kid of mine anything I could afford.

Well then, wake up folks. It's no fun being good unless there's someone to share that goodness with. Get off that couch throw the dinner in the oven mom, get off that barstool man and give that good boy of yours the most expensive gift of all - yourself.

Time waits for no one. It's no fun being good alone. Let that man or woman next to you know that was your son that just scored that run. Whether he be 8 or 14 years old let him know you're there. Like the song, "Sunrise-Sunset", says, "Yesterday he was just a little boy-today he's a man." Time is the greatest gift God has given equally to all. Don't let your Sunrise-Sunset come too soon.

We believe it is time for school people in Will County to voice their objection to the treatment we receive year in and year out in this county. We are told that tax collections are always late and that during a quadrennial year it is very late. So much so that schools this year may not receive 1971 tax money until 1973.

How can we continue to operate with all the other pressures we have - lack of proper State support - an antiquated tax system which uses property as the mainstay of school revenue etc.

We will have to anticipate and issue warrants because of late collections. This costs the taxpayer thousands of dollars county-wide.

We cannot even estimate receipts or intelligently plan a budget when we do not even know what our income will be since the county will not even supply this information.

Yet we must have a budget hearing and levy taxes at specified times. Must we be the ones who do what is right and others can make excuses.

The people here in the Summit Hill School District have a fine record for school support as evidenced by the passage of a recent rate and bond referendum. We now feel that money should be used for the education of their children and not to pay interest on warrants which their children and not to pay interest on warrants which must be issued because of the lethargy of the county.

Those responsible must plan accordingly and get the job done. We in the schools are asked to be accountable, we think our county officials should be also.

We represent people also and we think they should be treated justly. Tell the whole story.

An open letter to the Orland Park Fire Protection District and to all the volunteers who helped make my part of Orland Days such a great success, my deepest thanks and appreciation.

Their many acts of kindness and the names are too numerous to mention, for fear of omitting some.

Many, many thanks and again my deepest appreciation.

ORLAND PARK—"We ought to remain proud of our village and maintain a cleanup period from January 1 through December 31," said Trustee Jon Anderson. Anderson was commenting on the first general Village Cleanup that closed May 27.

Anderson said the success of the Cleanup was in large part due to the cooperation of the many Homeowners' Associations. In particular, the schools in the area were very helpful in not only policing their own grounds, but cleaning up adjacent areas.

On Saturday May 20 Scouts of Troop 381 cleared litter and trash from the highway rights of way. Those Scouts working around Brown's Fried Chicken, 144th Pl. and LaGrange Road were given a free chicken dinner by the owners who, according to Anderson, felt much of the litter was from their patrons.

Schout Troop 368 worked on the rights of way on May 27.

On May 20 one half dozen gondolas that become the bed of a truck were filled with trash picked up along the roadways.

Anderson says that he hopes groups who have not completed their cleanup would continue until finished even though the official weeks are over.

Unit school

Look at dual districts, up-dating may be needed

Questioning of our present school system structure in the southwest suburbs has become more noticeable. Although southeast suburban natives take the structure of the school system for granted, newcomers often wonder why the elementary grades and the high school grades are divided into separate districts.

Now, some of our local school officials are taking a critical look at the dual district system and are asking the same question. It is a question that needs to be asked.

The dual district system is actually an exception in school structure from the rest of the country. Most of the school districts in the United States combine the kindergarten through 12th grades in one district, called a unit district.

The dual district system was established in this area as a natural outgrowth of urban development. With no state guidelines to follow, the one-room rural schools evolved into mini dual districts as the new area grew from country town to big city suburb.

For the sake of statewide unity, the legislature offered dual districts a money incentive to reorganize into unit districts in 1947. But by that time it was too late. The incentive has continued and increased but local districts have stubbornly held onto the dual system - that is, until now.

Last year Romeoville High School broke away from Lockport High School district and recently the communities of Romeoville and Bolingbrook voted 11 to 1 to form a unit district. . . a combination of the elementary schools and high school.

Overtures towards a unit district for High School District 230 (Sandburg and Stagg) and the underlying grade school districts have been made. Reactions have ranged from mild interest to none at all. Most districts are taking a wait and see stance.

The districts' reluctance to join a full scale study of reorganization can be attributed partly to pending legislation and court action. A suit before the U.S. District Court in Chicago charges the state school aid formula is unconstitutional because it favors unit district. And several bills have been presented to the legislature to boost the dual districts' share of state funds. Until these matters are resolved, a study would be premature, say many school officials.

The school officials may be justified in waiting to study the financial aspects of the unit district system. However, there is no why they can't begin now to study the effects of reorganization on education.

Advocates of the unit system claim it provides better continuity between the elementary and high school grades, avoids duplication of administrators' efforts and establishes a uniform salary scale.

On the other hand, some school officials charge reorganization would create monumental problems with no apparent benefit. In addition to the sticky question of ownership and indebtedness, school officials are confronted with redrawing district boundaries and reassigning board and administrative staffs.

The pros and cons of reorganization are many and complex. But this does not mean the issue should be ignored.

We encourage the districts to join together to take a serious look at their present organization. What may have been appropriate in an earlier decade, may be outmoded today. It is the school districts' responsibility to find out.

On second thought

The long hot summer

By Glen Logan

There was a song written about it years ago that is still being played and sung by some TV entertainers - "In the Good Old Summer-time," and by this time next week that time will be here officially. The summer solstice - the longest day of the year—officially marks the end of spring and the beginning of summer. As a practical matter in these latitudes. It signals the end of winter.

This year, however, was different. We had a lot of hot days in May—with temperatures up in the 90's and setting records like mad. It happens that way occasionally. Your correspondent remembers one year when between May 15 and the end of June a 90 degree reading came to be accepted as cool. There were 31 deaths in the period that were attributed to heat. Besides the human beings taken in this manner there were many farm animals that succumbed. There were more persons who died from the heat in that short period than ever before or since in the history of Will County.

When the temperature crawled up into the 90's early last month it made one wonder but fortunately the hot was sandwiched with the cold so one had a chance to recuperate between torrid spells. June has had some hot days too so far but that is only natural. One can't complain about that. In fact there are a lot of people who like warm weather. Great for picnics—if one likes picnics. In fact summertime is great for a lot of things. For one thing it is traditionally vacation time and a lot of people go traveling, camping, fishing, swimming, increase their beer and pop input, play golf, go to baseball games, eat more ice cream, play tennis, buy oils to promote suntan and then buy lotions that are supposed to soothe the pain of sunburn.

Once upon a time people spent a lot of time in summer in hammocks, napping or reading but no one has time for that anymore. One is either going someplace or coming back from someplace and why read when there is a TV or a radio around.

There is no snow to shovel in summer but there is the lawn to mow and while you are laboring in the heat think of those blustery, snowy, shiver days, and be thankful—that it is not hotter and that it's not zero.

We are a strange lot, we humans. When it is hot we think that a touch of winter would be a fine thing, and when it is cold we long for a bit of that hot weather we were complaining about a few months back.

We really should appreciate summer because winter hangs on so long, practically eliminating spring, and a lot of times winter takes over a part of autumn, so we are left with just two seasons—winter and summer. Anyway there, doesn't seem to be any hammocks anymore.

Summer time is a good time to get your winter wardrobe and winter is the time to get your clothes for summer.

If you have the money you can go skiing in various parts of the United States and the rest of the world and in the winter you can do the same thing. That way you can be in a fracture section of a hospital twice a year. Do it every year for 10 years and you may get club rates at the hospital. There's more glamor to breaking a leg or arm in skiing than by falling from a ladder, flight of stairs or tripping over a garden hose or a tricycle left out on the lawn.

Of course, if you have the money you can pick your own climate—go north, one to the mountains or the seashore when its hot and head for the balmy south in the winter.

Well, whether you like the summer or you don't like summer, it's here and will probably be here for two or three months, so make the best of it.

If it's too hot how about a palm leaf fan? Only trouble is that you probably would become a heat exhaustion victim in your search for this item. They just don't seem to have no palm leaf fans no more.

Pot smoking is common crime

(The following is a continuation of a drug series offered by Tinley Park Cares.)

Except for speeding in a motor vehicle on the highways, marijuana smoking is likely the most common committed crime in the nation. Americans who have experimented with marijuana smoking at least once may number as many as 20 million persons. It is estimated by the Pentagon in Washington that perhaps as much as 30 percent of our troops in Vietnam have tried "pot," but most people making estimates seem to agree that this is a conservative guess. Where surveys have been taken in larger universities the extent of marijuana users tops 50 percent of the undergraduates, and the figure is rising.

You'll hear the argument, coming most often from very young users of marijuana, that it is harmless, has no long-lasting effects, and it is not "habit forming." In one recent survey of 200 marijuana smokers, it was found that 49 percent had already experimented with LSD, 43 percent had tried amphetamines and 24 percent some form of barbiturates. In all of them, two-thirds had used other illegal drugs! If, in the research now underway, marijuana is proved physically and at the same time medically safe, (which is unlikely), isn't it obvious that there still is a definite guilt by association? It seems to form a pattern that the marijuana user seldom remains only a user of this drug.

Specialists concerned with "drug" misuse offer these constructive suggestions to parents in dealing with their children:

Keep your cool—a level head thinks logically, makes better decisions and generally acts more wisely.

Listen to what young people are really trying to tell you. Drugs are not the cause of drug use—at least not initially—there are hundreds of reasons why a child experiments with drugs. Find those potential reasons in your home—family relationships. Correct what might become a dangerous condition before it can cause serious trouble.

Get the facts concerning drugs and make certain you expose your youngsters to this data in an atmosphere of sharing.

When setting discipline be very fair—but at the same time be very firm.

All experts in the field agree on this one being of utmost importance: Set Good Parental Examples! A parent who in effect says, "Do as I say, not as I do," stands little chance of influencing his children for true good.

While many people stand doing little more than hand-wringing, more and more parental groups across the country are setting up drug study meetings which show films on the subject.

It goes without saying that the more complete and basically factual information parents have concerning drugs, the more effective they can be in dealing with drug temptations, difficulties and discussions. Children and young people in general must know more than just one side of the story, since most of their information comes from others who favor drug experimentation, usually those in their own age group.

Church starts 'account'

ORLAND PARK — More than 100 people gathered in the Fellowship Hall Thursday, June 8, to have their blood drawn by doctors and nurses from Mount Sinai Hospital.

The people were members of Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church, 94th Avenue and 147th Street, who were making a first effort to start a blood bank for members of their congregation.

Sponsored by the Aid Association for Lutherans, whose branch office is located at 9449 W. 143rd Street, the plan is a type of blood insurance program. As a result of more than 10 per cent of the congregation donating blood now the members and immediate family may draw blood at any time it is needed. They will have an "account" at Mount Sinai with entries noted like a bank account.

Pastor Walter Ledogar said the members of families of children in the Sunday School also will be covered, whether or not they are members of the congregation. In addition he said that every member of the congregation is "insured" whether or not he donated blood.

Blood may be obtained by a member of the plan who might be hospitalized at any hospital in the world. Cards will be issued to each member showing his participation in the plan.

Implementation of the program is under a committee headed by Mrs. Carol Ledogar.

All Saints Lutheran Church, 133rd Street and LaGrange Road, under Pastor Bruce Maki also used the facilities of Christ Evangelical Lutheran to start a blood bank for its congregation.

Boyle Knights sponsor King Brothers Circus

TINLEY PARK — The circus is coming to town. The Father C.C. Boyle Knights of Columbus will sponsor the performances of the King Brothers Circus at Vogt Woods, 171st St. and 65th Ave., June 22, 4 p.m. and 8 p.m.

"In our efforts to bring wholesome entertainment to our area, we are happy to sponsor this family event," said Ed Godette, circus chairman. "We are conducting an advance ticket sale and the proceeds our organization realizes will be used for local charities and other community projects."

The circus will be presented in three rings under the Big Top and features wild and domestic animals, including the famed King Brothers performing elephants; complete with acrobats, tumblers, jugglers, wire walkers, aerialists and clowns. There is all the color, pagentry, excitement and sounds of the traditional American circus which has thrilled the public for centuries.

The all new performance will be noted for its great variety of performing horses and ponies, but also features almost every type of entertainment known to the circus world under the mammoth big top. The circus promises many imported stars and attractions which will be seen in the United States for the first time.

St. Michael offers new program

ORLAND PARK — In a lengthy four-hour meeting on Monday, June 5, St. Michael School Board of Education accepted the recommendation of Principal Sister Eunice to introduce a new physical education program in the school in September.

The program is a specific curriculum of 18 classes for grades one through six. Each child will spend 40 minutes a week in physical education. A privately owned organization conducts the program with trained physical education teachers.

Board members felt its chief value lay in relieving the classroom teachers of conducting gym classes. Further, all gym equipment is supplied by the private organization.

Seventh and eighth grade physical education classes will be taught by a newly assigned teacher who holds a masters degree in English and a "strong" minor in physical education, according to his credentials.

A $3 gym fee will be added to the school book bill of each child.

Sister Eunice told the board that the school is resigning from the Suburban Southwest Conference in order to join the All Saints Conference, a Catholic League. The latter league has accommodations for both academic and physical education competitions, including math, spelling and speech contests.

In another matter the principal said she had been in contact with Robert Cullen, assistant superintendent of schools for District 135, who wanted a listing of students who would be eligible for busing from the District. According to her there are 216 children living 1½ or more miles away from St. Michael school who reside in District 135.

The question was raised as to what should be done while the appeal is pending against Judge Nathan Cohen's order that public schools must provide free transportation for private school children meeting the eligibility requirements. The decision on the appeal is not expected until November.

Board members said that leaves parents in a quandary whether to privately charter buses for their children for the September term. The board felt something should be done before September in fairness to parents, Clark Bus Company and District 135.

A resolution was passed authorizing President Dan McGrath to work as quickly as possible to resolve the issue before school starts.

Upon learning it would cost $43,440, or $23 per square foot, to enlarge the library into the courtyard the board tabled the project for the time being. Principal cost would result in materials having to be lifted by crane into the central courtyard.

The board accepted a report and recommendations of the Finance Committee. Letters will be sent to parents explaining the new board policy on school financial matters.

This meeting marked the end of the terms of seven of the 15-member Board. Joseph Kwain will be replaced as representative from Sacred Heart Parish by Ignatius Mockaitis. Of the six remaining members only Felix Germino is running for re-election. Other retiring members are Oscar Enk, Marie Patricoski, Thomas Finucane, Robert Ready and Dan McGrath.

Germino, who received his masters degree in business administration from the University of Chicago on Friday, June 9, was elected president for the year 1972-73. Robert Boucek will serve as vice-President and Virginia Walsh as secretary.

Replacements are hired for the eight lay teachers not returning in the fall. No religious teachers will be leaving.

Letter asks busing for children

ORLAND PARK — A letter from Daniel McGrath president of St. Michael School Board of Education has requested that Elementary District 135 plan to bus in September eligible children attending St. Michael School.

McGrath said that attorneys have advised his board that the recent ruling by (Judge Nathan Cohen on Section 29-4) of the Illinois Revised Statutes entitles the children to this service now.

McGrath added that parents and both schools should know what would be done about busing before school starts in September.

The consensus of District 135 School Board at the Monday night meeting to the letter was to write McGrath indicating it plans to proceed with routing the buses to pick up the children if the appeal now before the Illinois Supreme Court fails. It also has an alternate plan for bussing that does not include St.

Michael children.

Franklin Klein, attorney for District 135, obtained a stay order on June 8 from the Illinois Supreme Court from Judge Cohen's decision, and Klein has requested the court, because of the special circumstances, that the case be handled before September.

A decision on the case had not been expected before November which would make bus scheduling difficult.

Library vote stands as is, district loses

By Gertrude Gallagher

ORLAND PARK — Despite a last ditch effort to turn defeat into victory the verdict is in and the Orland Library District referendum is defeated.

Lester Stoeffel, director of the Suburban Library System to which the Orland Park Library belongs, said it was thought for a while that a different interpretation of the new Illinois Constitution would allow the ballots to be counted on the total combined vote without separation into those from incorporated areas and those from unincorporated areas. On this basis the referendum would have carried with a total vote of 420 for and 286 against.

However, Stoeffel said the attorneys have now rendered the opinion that this is not possible. The voting results are to be considered as originally stated and the measure is defeated.

Orland Park and Westhaven were the two incorporated villages in the referendum taken June 3. Although voting 3 to 1 for the referendum as an incorporated unit the Village of Westhaven voted 3 to 1 against the measure with the bulk of "for" votes coming from Orland Park.

Unincorporated land voted 2 to 1 against the district formation with Orland Township tied, and Palos Township voting 3 to 1 against the issue.

The proposed district covered both incorporated and unincorporated land. To pass the referendum a majority in favor had to be registered from both areas.

If passed the new library district would have been a separate taxing body. The residents of the Village of Orland Park are presently taxed for library services and would not receive an immediate tax raise, whereas those in Westhaven and unincorporated areas do not have a library and are not taxed for library services. Library board members had anticipated a majority vote would favor the district from the Village of Orland Park.

Proponents of the district had said a levy of $12 per every $10,000 of valuation would be assessed on the tax bill the first year. Since the proposal was first made last July state law has increased the levy to $15 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

Although the Orland Park Library stressed that the June 3 vote was not a building bond construction vote many voters apparently feared establishing a district with powers to tax would open the door to building construction referendums.

Greatest opposition came from voters in Palos Township, many of whom have complained that the recently established Sanitary District in that area is costing considerably more than originally quoted.

The Orland Park Library has been seeking some means to acquiring larger quarters for some time. It has considered property at 151st street and West Avenue in the Hillcrest Shopping Center, and the former property of the Nazarene Church at 143rd Street and Jefferson Avenue.

Westhaven, Tekton meet on building

WESTHAVEN — A special meeting was held June 12th in the Westhaven Village Hall at the request of the building department to iron out problems concerning Tekton Corp. Home Builder, currently constructing single family homes.

Several officials of the corporation were present at the meeting. Representing Tekton were Lewis Wright, executive vice-president; Emery Harmon construction vice-president, Robert Russo, vice president in charge of sales, and David Zajicek, general consul of Tekton.

Mayor Curtis Whitaker, Trustees Diane Bartholomey, Meredith Macki, and Ralph Aldrich represented the village.

Building inspector Dennis Ward, a representative of Robinson and Associates Village engineers, and Village Attorney Ronald Glink were also present.

In the official statement from Tekton Corporation, Wright claimed, that the company has been plagued with harrassments, work stoppages and overall confusion. Since our company started in Westhaven, the report continued that there has been three changes in project superintendents primarily because of the superintendents inability to get along with Mayor Whitaker.

None of these superintendents have been fired, but all are working successfully in other locations and meeting the building requirements of other villages. Several weeks ago Tekton received a further request from the Mayor to transfer the present superintendent.

Wright continued with the statement

"To my knowledge, there is no municipality in the entire area where subcontractors are either stopped cold or thrown off the job without a reasonable period of time to either explain their position or rectify the situation. It is becoming more and more difficult for our company to obtain bids from reliable subcontractors for work here in Westhaven — their feeling is that it is virtually impossible to work within this environment.

Our building program commenced in Westhaven on the north side of town in the area known as Westhaven North. Our aim was to concentrate on the north side until we had completed building out the 182 platted lots in that area. Shortly after starting our program on the north side, Mayor Whitaker sold our company 59 lots which he owned in the village.

At the completion of the sale, Whitaker insisted that we start on his lots prior to completing our program on the north side. Thus, our construction program has been extremely hampered by having to divide our crews between the north and south which is much more difficult to supervise. In addition, our vandalism control is less effective," Wright reported.

The report claims that of 135 homeowners in Westhaven, approximately 70 of them have signed off the initial inspection list which verifies that the items have been done by Tekton.

The company working actively each day on the remaining homeowner requests and are averaging approximately five signoffs per week.

The company brought the complete Westhaven homeowners file to the meeting and offered it to anyone who cares to inspect it.

The report continues: Since each home built by Tekton has a one-year guarantee, we will be working closely with all of our homeowners in Westhaven in correcting any deficiencies that might occur at a later date.

Tektons desire is to work in a spirit of cooperation. We have a large investment in this town and are extremely excited about the potential of a planned community here in Southwest Chicagoland. We will continue to correct any deficiencies that have occurred or will occur on any given building or lot.

Finally, the statement ends, we have no desire to enter into the political aspects of Westhaven. We are builders and our desire is to concentrate on building quality homes for our homeowners.

Mayor Whitaker stated that the statement of Tekton made about being forced by him to build on the lots he owned were a lie. Whitaker further stated that Tekton did not have total permits from M.S.D. to build in Westhaven north, and that was why the corporation started construction in the southern section of the village.

"Mr. Brazilton representing Robinson Engineers is also on the board of MSD and he can get the information to correct the lie," Whitaker said.

Wright told Whitaker, "we had total sewage for 95 lots in north Westhaven and we can document that. Whitaker then replied to Wright, "if you proceed with this you'll proceed in court, Wright answered "We're ready to do this."

Building inspector Dennis Ward

stated that there has been a lot of comments from Tekton, the village board and residents of the village, about who runs the building department. "I run the building department, the mayor doesn't". Ward then asked Emery Harmon if he didn't make the statement that, he Harmon can get along with me (Ward) but not the mayor. Harmon had no comment on the statement.

Ward further stated that he has never seen such sloppy work in his 12-years experience, but Ward did not go into details on repairs.

Wright asked Ward if Tekton can deal directly with him, he further stated that he knows of no other village where the Mayor travels with the building inspector. Ward replied, "The mayor is in the field at my request".

Wright asked that all subcontractors working for Tekton be allowed to deal directly with the building inspector. Whitaker told Wright "you have a board and mayor they can override the building department." Wright replied "we want to deal with the building inspector and if a problem comes up then it will go to the board."

Ward said that the subcontractors have to be told many times to correct things and that the village has other problems such as the cleanups of the units, streets, and vacant lots, Ward also requested that Tekton keep the grass cut on the vacant lots they own. The building department has requested that Tekton re-plant phase three, four and five in the North Westhaven. "We want a plat of the entire subdivision from 159th to 163rd St. so we can see just what routes Tekton is taking," stated Ward.

Whitaker said that Tekton has expected to make changes and variations without any permits, forty two variations have now been filled with the village Whitaker suggested that all variations be stopped. Harmon said some of the changes are model changes. Home buyers may like a different home on the lot they buy. Ward said he was only asking for a permit on variations before they are done, "we don't want a village full of variations," Ward said.

A request was made by Trustee Diane Bartholomey that in the future any requests for variations made by Tekton to the building department should also be sent to Trustee Aldrich chairman of the permits and licenses committee.

Wright said that Tekton has operated without a building inspector at times and also pointed out that he had never met the former board that passed their original plans, Wright said he always worked strictly with Mayor Whitaker. Ward a former trustee who was on the village board when Tekton plans were approved, admitted he had never met Wright before todays meeting, Ward also claimed that every board member saw Tektons plans and studied them.

Wright said that Tekton was requested by Maryor Whitaker to buy 244 building permits prior to the April 1971 election because Whitaker told Tekton if there is a change in administration they (Tekton) might not get the permits they wanted.

Whitaker told Wright, "that's your statement, and if you want to live and build in Westhaven you better change your attitude you think you're a big spread coming in here."

The building inspector stated that the B.O.C.A. code is a guide, and the village can request anything it wants dealing with building. Village Glink told Ward that he was incorrect, and that Tekton must meet the village code as well as the B.O.C.A. code.

Problems dealing with homeowners complaints were also discussed in length. Several residents of Highview Avenue stated that they have contacted Tekton many times on complaints and nothing has been done, and that some Tekton workers told homeowners that they wouldn't do the repairs until the work sign off sheets were signed.

Ward said they have over forty complaints from homeowners and they have been turned over to FHA, and that he Ward doesn't go out and solicit problems.

It was suggested that a registered letter be sent to Tekton regarding any homeowner complaints to the attention of Jonahan Keehn and Jim Hilton, it was also suggested that if homeowners write to FHA, regarding their complaints that they use their case number which can be obtained from Tekton.

Wright stated that he was very much in sympathy with the unhappy homeowners and he would personally look at the homes after the meeting.

Tekton attorney Zajicek asked for copies of the complaint letters from president Whitaker. Whitaker replied, "you'll get copies." Zajicek pressed Whitaker as to when they would receive copies. Whitaker told him, "the chairman of the complaint committee will decide when you get the letters." Zajicek then told Whitaker, "you're more concerned with fault than getting things done."

A meeting will be set up between Tekton and inspector Ward as to just what the building complaints are and a date when Tekton will take care of all the homeowners problems.

Ward recommended that all new construction by Tekton be stopped until the backlog of complaints are taken care of. Ward also asked that Tekton put up a cash escrow for sidewalks, driveways etc, on homes that are completed and can be occupied, but that weather doesn't permit the completion of the outside work.

The building inspector will also review the permits of subcontractors.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER BY JIM HIRSCH

Mark Twain once said, "When I was a boy of fourteen, my father was so ignorant I could hardly stand to have the old man around. But when I got to be twenty-one, I was astonished at how much he had learned in seven years."

Mark Twain's realization is not unique. A lot of present day youngsters will likewise discover, when they merge a future present with the past, that many dads deserve a tribute expressed by an unknown author . . . "Only a dad, with a tired face . . . Coming home from the daily race . . . Bringing little of gold and fame . . . To show how well he played the game . . . But glad in his heart that his own rejoice . . . To see him come and to hear his voice . . . Only a dad, but he gives his all . . . To smooth the way for his children small . . . Doing, with courage stern and grim . . . The deeds his father did for him . . . These are the lines for him I pen . . . Only a dad, but the best of men."

Utopia: in the money business it's 6% on your savings

Utopia is supposed to be the unreachable dream of idealists. In our practical world of financial affairs, the closest you can come to it is the 6% yearly interest that South Suburban Federal pays on its 2-year, $5,000 savings certificates. And, the next closest thing to the best of all possible worlds is our 5 1/2% certificates (also two years, but only a $1,000 minimum deposit). These are the two nicest things we can do for our savers, but there are three other reasons to save here. Three other savings plans to fit your budget and your future dreams.

We're trying to make South Suburban Federal a paradise for savers and we're trying to do it with the highest interest rates allowed by law. We've maintained our high interest rates even while other financial institutions have lowered, raised, upped, downed and fluctuated theirs.

Come to the place that's always paradise for savers. South Suburban, where 61 years of security are coupled with the highest available returns.

Busy job

“Bringin’ home the bacon” - always

By Jean Wille

TINLEY PARK — No one will argue with the fact that raising a child today in view of drug problems can be a hazardous task. But any one who raised a child during the 30's can also testify to parental concern regarding children's oral intake. Of course, the problem in the thirties regarded nutritional substances, such as "uppers" and "downers."

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Bacon, 17703 Highland Ave., (unincorporated) near Tinley Park, were one of the few couples who raised a family of eight during these hand-to-mouth days, and came out on top, intact and, thankful.

Leon and Ruth Bacon were married June 28, 1930. They have lived at their present address for 40 years. With the exception of their oldest daughter, Delores, all the children spent their entire childhood at the family home. There are 15 grandchildren now.

The couple became members of Zion Lutheran Church in December, 1949. All eight of the children attended Sunday School and were confirmed. As they grew older, the three boys and four of the girls ushered and taught Sunday School. Leon was a trustee and Ruth has served in many capacities of teaching, secretarial work, and the ALC-W (American Lutheran Church Women). Leon did not have a great deal of time to "play ball" with his kids when they were small. In fact, it is often mentioned by the kids as well as Leon, himself, that it was unfortunate that time was at such a premium. But with eight little mouths to feed and jobs disappearing from the market, first things had to come first. And food, as always, took precedence over anything else.

Leon held a variety of jobs to keep the family together; salesman for the Chicago Paper Company; route delivery man for John Swisher (luncheon meats) while his son, Dick, was in the service; Brewster Laundry, Chicago; route salesman, Tinley Park Bakery; and his present job as a custodian at the Tinley Park High School, which he has held for the last 11 years.

In August, 1970 the father of eight was stricken with a heart attack.

He recovered sufficiently to return to work. In 1972, he was again hospitalized. This time with an undetermined kidney disorder. After being off work for eight weeks, he again returned to his high school custodial duties.

Leon is now 67 years old. Retire? According to Ruth, "he talks about it a lot, but never seems to do anything about it. When we do discuss retirement, we talk about getting a small traveling trailer of some sort. We would like to take the back roads around the country really see America. We've seen the

In the mean time, there is still work. Unlike most school district employees, custodians work throughout the summer. This is their "spring house-cleaning" time at the high school. Floors are stripped of old wax, desks cleaned and painting done. It is a busy, productive time.

All the Bacon kids and their families will not be able to make it "home" for Father's Day. A couple of them have sicknesses in their own families, and, living out of state, will not be able to make it back home. So, on behalf of all the kids, Leon, Happy Father's Day.

Tasty Talents Rhubarb pie - hits home-run

TINLEY PARK — Surprise your family with a special treat, rhubarb pie, a simple feat — to repeat.

Being the wife of a minister, Jan Lechner, 17150 S. 69th Ave., attends many church and civic affairs and consequently has the opportunity to sample "favorite recipes" of many cooks. She is an enthusiastic person who carries her exuberance over into her cooking, and Jan loves rhubarb pie.

Lately, her family, Pastor Paul, and children, Phil, Ann, Tim and Sarah have been treated to a delicious rhubarb-meringue pie. The recipe was given to Jan by Adela Marquardt, a member of Zion Lutheran Church where Pastor Lechner is minister.

RHUBARB MERINGUE PIE

1 cup granulated sugar
2 level tablespoons flour
3 egg yolks (slightly beaten)
4-5 stalks cleaned, diced rhubarb
Prepared, unbaked pie shell

Fill pie shell, level, with rhubarb. Mix sugar, egg yolks and flour and pour over rhubarb. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

MERINGUE

Beat 3 egg whites until stiff, gradually adding 3 teaspoons of sugar. Cover the hot pie with the meringue and brown in oven.

Gemini Engagements

SAGITTA SAYS If your engagement period extends through May 21 to June 20, the sign of Gemini, expect Mercurial influences.

Mercury is the ruling planet of this sign, and it may unearth intellectual judgments of, "Yes, I think I want this commitment" as against, "I think I want out of it." You may comment, surely this is common in all engagements.

But, Gemini, the 3rd sign of the spring equinox rules through the dispersion of energies, and a restlessness may characterize your engagement.

But, breathe easy! On a more positive note, there is also an impatience to integrate. In this context, to finally get down to the business of tying-the-knot.

Paper Doll patterns

SOUTHWEST — Dorothy Landgraf, Extension Advisor for the Bremen Unit of Cook County Homemakers Extension Association, displayed three long skirts and a pair of Kelly, or, harem pants, that she had sewn, to the group at their last meeting at the home of Mrs. James E. Wrezen, Oak Forest.

The meeting was held to inform the members on pattern adjustment on slacks and shorts. However, as some women are more at ease in long skirts and the discussion continued to all forms of casual wear.

According to Mrs. Landgraf, the most difficulty arising in the proper fitting of shorts and slacks is not in measurements for the waist, thigh or length but in the crotch.

The simplest way to get this important crotch measurement is to sit on a chair and have a friend measure from chair seat to waistline and then add one-half inch, or three-quarters of an inch, for ease. Mrs. Landgraf advised members to make a muslin pattern from the correctly adjusted paper pattern, then when the muslin slacks "prove-out," they can be taken apart and the pattern used again.

Highway work gets opposition

NEW LENOX — The village board of New Lenox is confronted with another problem — opposition to the widening of U.S. 30 through the business section.

A petition with a reported 25 signatures protesting the widening was filed with the board at its meeting last Wednesday by Frank Riesbeck, one of the businessmen involved. He was accompanied by an attorney, James Wirt, who addressed the mayor and trustees in behalf of the business people.

The business people point out that the widening will mean the banning of parking on either side of U.S. 30 where it is widened. "Eliminate parking," Wirt said, "and you will eliminate business."

No parking, he added, would also be an inconvenience to the public. John Djerf, village engineer, was asked to view the proposed widening plans to figure out how many parking spaces could be realized.

The plans show no space for parking but Djerf said that when the question was first brought up some months ago it was estimated there could be about 16 parking spaces. Parking, however, would have to be parallel and Djerf estimated it would cost the village from $400 to $800 for each space.

The widening, if carried out, would provide four lanes of traffic for about a block and a half of two blocks, the widening is expected to ease the traffic congestion at Cedar and Maple streets.

However, Riesbeck and Attorney Wirth claim that the widening will not be of too much help, that it is the rail crossing about half a block north of U.S. 30 that causes traffic to pile up at the intersection.

Eastbound cars that want to turn left on Cedar now pile up for blocks on U.S. 30. A fourth lane would free the east and west traffic, person critical of the project argue that this would work if the highway were four lanes all the way, but to have only a short piece of it widened merely just changes the location of the bottlenecks.

Mayor Joseph E. Hartun told Riesbeck and Wirt that the village board would make a careful study of the plans before any action is taken.

Planners give OK to Tanglewood

FRANKFORT — Tanglewood Subdivision, a 33 acre development north of Connecticut Hills, has been approved by the Frankfort planning commission and now goes to the village board for final action. The developers are the Joseph Schudt's, senior and junior. The land is held by a trust and the Schudts reportedly have agreed to certain items in behalf of the trust, including filing fees, drainage, a bridge and a road.

Burton Breidert, the plan commission chairman and administrative assistant for the village board, said the Schudts agreed to list the names and addresses of those in the trust and pay a filing fee of $250.

Drainage easements will be granted, if necessary, Breidert reported, and there will be street lighting. The bridge referred to will extend over a creek connecting Colorado Avenue to Indiana Court.

Breidert said the petitioners agreed for a road connection to the existing surface on Indiana Court and a 66-foot right of way is to be dedicated that will provide an exit if the area to the east is developed.

The developers will donate 1.75 acres of land to the park district, which was somewhat of a disappointment as far as the park district is concerned. The park board is hoping for enough land for a ball field.

Tanglewood will be an exclusively single family residence subdivision with high priced homes. It was said that lots are selling there for $10,000.

It was inadvertently printed last week that the Frankfort village board did not grant the petition of Joseph Poliska and John Glowicki for a B-2 zoning for their property on U.S. 45, 400 feet south of Colorado Avenue. The "act" apparently was inadvertently added.

The item should have read that the village board "did" approve the zoning which will permit the petitioners to operate a cocktail lounge and restaurant there. The petitioners described it as a "supper club type" of operation.

New Lenox reduces appropriations

NEW LENOX — The 1972-73 appropriation ordinance for the village of New Lenox has been adopted in the sum of $1,740,250, which is more than a million and a quarter dollars less than last year.

Total appropriation for the 1971-72 fiscal year was $2,970,750 because it carried a figure for expenditures on the water system as well as expenditures on the improvement to the sanitary sewer system, including the disposal plant.

This year's appropriation includes a figure of $1,072,650 for the water system but the big sum for the sewer is no longer needed.

The appropriation measure was drawn up over a period of several months of discussion between the board and James Hearn, accountant and village treasurer and converted into ordinance form by Village Attorney Wayne Johnson. The ordinance was adopted last Wednesday at the regular village board meeting. Johnson pointed out there are many expenditures listed that will not be made because there will be no funds.

However, unless there is an appropriation an expenditure cannot be made, John explained, even though funds may be available. So appropriations ordinances are drawn with the thought in mind to be ready in case the money is available.

The bonds floated to finance the water system are of the revenue type — which is to say they will be paid off by the water users and will be no charge against the real estate.

The appropriation ordinance appears in detail on another page in this issue but broken down into its major segments it goes like this:

Administrative expenditures $85,950
Health Department 500

Streets	111,200
police	95,900
Public property	20,000
Civil Defense	1,000
Garbage disposal	23,000
Sewer department	330,050
Water department	$1,072,650
Total expenditures	$1,740,250

The ordinance shows a figure of $12,650 for the operation and maintenance of the water department; financing at $60,000, plus a million for building of the system.

At the July 5 meeting the board is expected to have bids of an iron removal filter the village has to install because of the high content of iron in the water supply. At the same time is will study bids on sewer extensions to the west to pick up the sewers to be installed by developers.

Board awards meter contract

NEW LENOX — The New Lenox village will use Badger Company meters to measure its output of water to the citizens. The board awarded the contract to Badger after examination of three bids.

The home meter offered by Badger is $41.84 cents each which is 16 cents less than the prices quoted by Neptune and Gorman-Calumet. Each of those firms quoted a price of $42.

Badger's price for a 3-4 inch meter is $58; Neptune's $57.50, and Gorman-Calumet, $57.70; For the inch size, Badger, $80.36; Neptune, $84; Gorman-Calumet, $79.96; 1 1/2 inch meter, Badger, $158.32; Neptune, $148.40; Gorman-Calumet, $150.13; 2 inch meter Badger, $225.50; Neptune, $216.40 and Gorman-Calumet, $218.98.

The size for home use is 5-8 and 3-4 and there will be approximately 460 of these ordered. The larger sizes are for apartments and commercial buildings and the number of these is minimal, it was said. The difference in price on the home type meter counter-balances the differences for the larger sizes, it was said.

Village Engineer John Djerf of Robert E. Hamilton Associates reported that the new water system is nearing completion.

Blaine Saxton, Mokena, who has the contract for installing the water mains, puts the service up to the property line. In some instances he has been hired to run the service from the buffalo box to the house but any plumbing firm may be hired for this purpose, it was said by the board, or perhaps the householder himself can put it in if he can do the work.

Some residents on Kimber Lane indicated they would like to be on the village water system instead of being served by Paul Houser who installed a water main along that street. The village contends that when he installed the main he gave it to the village but Houser denies this, it was brought out, and he says he will sue the village if it taps on to his main.

Lloyd Lindstrom, one of the Fire Protection District trustees, appeared before the board to urge elimination of deadends in the water system particularly at U.S. 30 and Church Street on Wallace Street and Lime Street.

He was told that perhaps loops can be installed from future earnings of the water department but right now the village does not have the money to install these loops.

There was a question raised, but no answer is yet forthcoming, as to whether the fire department should be charged for water it uses in fighting fires outside the corporate limits. A check is to be made with other communities as to how this matter is handled.

Parking stops installation set

MOKENA — Installation of parking stops in the Mokena Mall can now be scheduled, it was announced to the Chamber of Commerce by its president, Anthony Dian, at its recent meeting.

The Chamber of Commerce raised the funds to purchase the parking area, which extends from Mokena Street almost to Wolf Road from the Rock Island Lines. The lot is owned by the Village.

At its May meeting the chamber voted money for the stops that are to be located around the edge of the mall but installation was put off until the railroad removed a team track that ran east and west through the tract.

The track has finally been removed so the stops can be installed. There will be a pattern to provide a better traffic flow when commuter trains arrive.

Placement of the stops will be under the supervision of Village Engineer George Barber and Street Commissioner Kenneth Warning.

A resolution to re-employ Edith Sayers as school treasurer for a two-year period was approved and the New Lenox State Bank was again chosen as the depository for school funds.

Hauck quits will zoning appeal board

JOLIET — Sheldon W. Hauck, formerly of New Lenox who now resides in Joliet, has tendered his resignation from the Will County Zoning Board of Appeals on which he has served 21 years. He gave his resignation to Roy Hassert, chairman of the county board, to be effective as soon as possible. His successor will be named by the county board.

Hauck is head of the oil firm bearing his name and is president of the New Lenox State Bank. The county zoning board is a traveling bureau, it holds its hearings in the areas where the cases originate and as a result the members travel a lot of miles in the course of a year.

Board acts to curb verbal free for all at meetings

NEW LENOX — Notice has been given by the village board that hereafter any persons who have some problem or cause they wish to discuss at a public meeting of the council must give advance notice so he or she can be placed on the agenda for the session.

Recently some of the meetings have been on a casual or coffee-clutch basis with visitors joining in freely in the discussion of village business.

The village board operates on an agenda system but there have been times when the meetings have been verbal free for all. Some of the board members complained and at the meeting last week Mayor Joseph E. Hartung announced that hereafter the council would not hear anyone who was not on the agenda.

To get on the agenda, an individual or representative of an organization must go to the village hall or telephone Village Clerk Marjorie Wajchert to get an appointment to address the board.

Since the agendas must be typed and mailed the Friday afternoon preceding the meeting of the board it is necessary, for an applicant to file his request by noon Friday.

Joint electric project planned

CHICAGO — Commonwealth Edison Co. and the Rocketdyne Division of North American Rockwell Corporation have announced a joint plan to install an experimental space-power machine to produce electricity at Edison's generating plant near Joliet.

The peaking power unit will cost an estimated $1,600,000 and be designed to generate 11,000 kilowatts of electricity — enough power to serve about 10,000 homes. The Joliet experiment will mark the first earth adaptation of power systems developed by Rocketdyne for Apollo-Saturn V moon flights and other missions of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Rocketdyne power unit will be fueled by a mixture of liquefied natural gas and oxygen. Designed to be connected with an existing 11,000 kilowatt turbine-generator in the Joliet power plant, the space-power unit is expected to virtually eliminate emissions of particulate and other pollutants.

Plans call for an early construction start in order to prepare the unit for initial test-operation in about 14 months.

Installation of the unique peaking power unit marks another development in Commonwealth Edison's continuing program of environmental improvements, a company spokesman said.

Providence stole 15 bases in the first game as they jumped off to a 7-2 lead in the first four innings. Don Nugent smacked a two run double in the third as the Celtics scored three times.

Ray Budzinski opened the inning with a single and Tom Carey was safe on an error. Following a double steal Nugent came through with his double. Mickey Ruettiger, followed with a single to drive in Nugent.

With one out in the fourth Ed Olszta singled and scored later on an error. Carey contributed a two run single, and came home himself on another error, as the Celtics rolled to four runs.

In the second game the Providence runs came in pairs, in the first, third, and fifth innings, with single runs in the second and fourth.

Dick Mandella drove in four runs with a double and a single. Budzinski led in stolen bases with five.

Earlier in the week the Celtics had to settle for a tie, 2-2, with the Aurora UAW team when the game was called after seven innings because of darkness.

Both teams scored in the first and Aurora moved ahead 2-1 in the fourth. Providence scored the tying run in the seventh. Aurora had a chance to win in the seventh when Joe Dailey walked the bases loaded with one out, but then struck out the next two batters.

Providence scored in the first inning when Mandella singled, and scored on Dick Tezak's triple. With one out in the seventh Ed Olszta walked and stole second, and then stole third. Jim Quibly was hit by a pitch, and John Fretto came in to run for Quigley.

The Celtics then pulled a successful double steal with Olszta sliding home with the winning run.

In other action last week the Celtics beat St. Francis de Sales, 6-2.

Eagles split with Mavist

ORLAND PARK — Last week the Carl Sandburg Eagles summer baseball team started the year off with a split of a doubleheader with the Marist Redskins. In the first game Jeff King pitched a three-hitter to lead the Eagles to a 5-3 victory. In the second game Marist romped to a 10-3 decision. John Carroll started the game but was relieved by Steve Rodeck, only to be relieved by Joe Strata. The Eagles went into this game with a 9-12 season record and a 6-8 Southwest Suburban Conference record, but coach Ron Mellen said most of those games were one run games and could have gone either way.

Girls lead PE program

ORLAND PARK — Thirty-six Carl Sandburg High School girls, who will be seniors next year, have been selected as members of the recently inaugurated leader program in girl's physical education.

"When a girl is selected as a Junior Leader," reports Mrs. Rosemary Brown, chairman girl's physical education department, "she is enrolled in a special program that will train her to officiate sports, teach skills and techniques of play, develop an awareness of the problems involved in working with a group, assist with the necessary class duties, and become increasingly skillful in all areas of physical education. This class will be assigned to the chairman of the department, but every gym teacher will teach some phase of the program."

"After the student has successfully completed the junior leader class experience, she will become a senior leader. At that time, she will be assigned as an assistant in a physical education class, and will be responsible to a specific teacher. She will then be in a position to apply what she has learned, and developed as a junior leader," said Mrs. Brown.

The leader program should provide the student with an excellent opportunity to develop leadership ability, self-confidence, self-control, initiative, reliability, and good sportsmanship, as well as to fulfill such physical objectives as strength, grace, agility, endurance, organic vigor, and physical fitness.

The leader girls for next year are: Vicki Adams, Diane Aurenz, Kim Bechtold, Gail Bolton, Cathy Downs, Mindy Ewers, Cindy Halbach, Barbara Healy, Cindy Heavlin, Ann Hossler, Jean Higginbotham, Charlene Huetteman, Carol Hufnagel, Dorothea Karampelas, Debbie Kinzie, Sue Kohut, Sharon Kyndberg, Terry Lehaug, Debbie Novak, Sue Parus, Judi Pazdro, Vanetta Pichman, Shirley Plepys, Rita Polito, Cindy Porter, Karen Probst, Nuala McDonnell, Sheila McGinnis, Nan McGreenera, Phyllis McKown, Sally Sanfillippo, Karen Schwartz, Laima Seibutis, Sue Stockbridge, Shirley VanKirkHout, Sherry Wirth.

Today's Army vs. Yesterday's gal

AIR FORCE
Headquarters 928

Tactical Airlift Group (AFRES)
Travel Orders (CONUS) 15 May 1972
The following individual is invited to proceed on or about 20 May 1972 for approximately two days from Midway Airport, Chicago Illinois, to Volk Field, Wisconsin and return, for the purpose of news coverage of the airlift of the 434th Artillery Group, U.S.A.R. and bivouac at Volk Field.

16 May 1972

TO: Officers and Men of C Battery
FROM: Patrick E. Rea Captain, Q.M.C.
- U.S.A.R., Commanding
SUBJ: IDT Camp McCoy, Wisconsin 20 and 21 May 1972

1. The airborne operation this weekend has been finalized. All members of our Battery listed on the enclosure should be at Chicago, Midway Air Field at the times listed. All personnel listed on aircraft numbers 1 and 2 (Chalk no. 1/4 and No. 2-5) should report to Midway by 5:15 A.M. on Saturday, 20 May.

2. Equipment carried and worn at all times, including the air movement, are: 1.) Fatigues, 2.) Field Jacket (if desired), 3.) Helmet, w-liner, 4.) Pistol Belt, 5.) Combat Pack - suspenders, 6.) Sleeping Bag, 7.) Canteen w-cup and cover, 8.) First Aid Packet, 9.) Poncho, 10.) an extra set of fatigues.

The Flight and Vehicle Assignment Sheet listed 30 names of men ranked from Captain to PFC scheduled for Flight Chalk no. 1.

The 31st name scheduled for this flight was that of Mrs. Gertrude Gallagher.

So there I was, a nice girl, going on army maneuvers at Camp McCoy, Wisconsin. Would you believe?

My mother said she didn't raise her daughter to go into the army.

My father took out the World War II blue star to go into the window.

My teenagers said I was really spaced out.

My husband looked at the hatpin in the army fatigue cap, rolled on the floor, and said it wasn't the same old army he knew.

And the four-year-old Peanut Butter Kid cried and said, "Please don't go in the army, Momma!"

Well, why not see what army life is like? Women's Lib and Congress have this constitutional amendment thing making the rounds of the states where women could be drafted equally with men. Either I might soon have a draft number, or I'd have to stop saying I'm only 25!

The occasion of my boot camp was a weekend training mission for an artillery reserve unit that regularly meets in the Joliet Armory. For the first time Battery C of the 4th Battalion, 75th Field Artillery, 434th Group was to be combat lifted for the weekend to Camp McCoy with the cooperation of the United States Air Force.

The winding down of the active army has placed greater emphasis on the training of reserve units in all the service branches for home defense and support of regular troops.

Defense Secretary Melvin Laird announced at a recent NATO Conference in Brussels that beginning now reserve units will be readied for possible 72-hour air mobility missions to Europe in support of the troop strength there. Battery C hopes to schedule a two-week training mission in Germany in 1974.

Captain Patrick E. Rea, Commanding Officer of Battery C, said a reserve unit costs 1-6 that of a comparable active unit with 90 percent of the active army costs attributable to food, housing and personnel needs.

"It is my conviction that a large standing military is economically wasteful and could be a threat," said Rea. Rea, an officer in the First National Bank of Chicago, retains his professorial status by teaching at the University of Illinois, Circle Campus. He holds three master's degrees in economics, history and sociology. Rea has been Assistant Dean of Men at the University of Illinois, Urbana, and served as a management consultant before joining the bank. He was in the regular army two years with one year's service in Vietnam.

"The reservist is in the true minuteman concept of protection. Reserves are for home use and support of combat troops. There is no way to use reservists to attack anybody," says the 32-year-old captain.

Riding in Rea's car Friday night to the Armory is 23-year-old Jeff Tock, part of whose charm lies in his not knowing he is one of the most handsome young men I've met since becoming too ancient to care.

Tock, a 1970 graduate in Animal Science from the University of Illinois, commutes from Ann Arbor, Mich. to join the gun crews of Rea's unit for the monthly reserve weekends. Most of the men are from the southwest area around Tinley Park-Orland-Joliet, but some like Tock come a distance to be in the Joliet unit.

Tock says the apathy of a large standing army could be the real threat. He added that when men do not feel they are accomplishing, when they feel their abilities are not being utilized effectively apathy is followed by resentment.

With the "single service" concept of army and air force a unit such as Rea's that can be made air mobile can pick up on short notice and be brought to a point of need. Where previously it took 2 1/2-3 months to retrain a unit the goal is now to reduce that period to two weeks.

Training at the Joliet Armory in M-16 rifle and M-16 machine guns, hand grenades and pistols would allow the unit to function for a short period as a mechanized infantry unit if necessary. Only dry runs can be made on the big guns there.

But now Battery C is going to Camp McCoy, along with the rest of the 4th Battalion under Colonel Glenn J. Medus. They will train on the big 8-inch (203 mm) self propelled howitzer guns. Comparable to the biggest gun on a navy cruiser it has a nuclear capacity, if needed, and is said to be the most accurate gun in the world.

And I'm tagging along. But the first thing is for me to be appropriately outfitted at the Armory toward which I find myself speeding at 7 p.m. on this Friday evening.

Rea has a razor sharp wit and casualness enhanced by an appreciation of the intelligence of his men that seems to strike a responsive chord with them.

As we get out of the car one asks, "Is my hair too long, sir?"

"Pull the sideburns behind your ears," says Rea after viewing him critically.

Later, sitting behind a desk wearing a red commander's sport-like cap he starts the briefing for his jeaned and flared group most of whom sport mustaches, with a waxed tip ala Dali here and there.

"Congratulations on your graduation," he tells a recent law school graduate who says he's going to work in a factory for the summer.

Then begins a detailed itemization of plans for the weekend.

"There is no one more confused in the State of Illinois this week than Pat Rea," he jokes as he ticks off items on the checklist. The junior officers and men appreciate this remark. They are confused too. Their leader is one of them. The snap, crackle and pop officer would not be a big hit with this reserve unit.

"We're going to have to use the maximum amount of intelligence we have - or I'll get an ulcer," says the brown eyed captain with a grin. The intelligence level seems high in this group all of whom are high school graduates and 50 percent of whom have or are getting college degrees.

Rea is wrong about his confusion. I'm more confused. At least he knows the meaning of the initials he's using in place of words.

There's a bind on the POVs it seems. And don't forget such terms as the FTX and the FDC. To say nothing of the IDT and the NCOCIC.

"Wheels up at 0630," says Rea. "The convoy leaves at 0245."

"What, sir! 2:45, Sir? We don't leave until 6:30, Sir."

Rea revises the time line to 0345. (That's 3:45 in the cold dark morning I discover.)

Top Sergeant Keith Uffelmann, an amiable 30-year-old former Tennessee boy holding a clip board says in his southern accent, "At ease" and instant attention returns. This confuses me. I would have thought "at ease" was the opposite of attention.

Earlier Rea had told me that what was basically missing in a reserve unit was the day to day discipline and protocol. He said discipline is fairly lax, but to notice how it would stiffen in an environment that would require it.

Someone says don't forget to bring the toilet paper.

Another says remember a football. Procedure for loading and debarking from the transport plane is reviewed; 20 minutes to load; five minutes to debark. "The big thing is I don't want anyone to walk into the propeller," our Captain says. The men-and I - will debark while engines are running.

When they got to McCoy they were to "Draw the barracks." I hadn't the vaguest idea what that meant. Except for the pointed mustaches they really didn't look like a bunch of artistic guys.

"When the whistle goes off, we're not supposed to wave at the aircraft; we go into the ditch," Rea quips at the same time being in earnest.

Referring to me and feminine Air Force Information Officer Jerry Bielke, "The women are staying in MASH quarters."

"Really? Oh, God! Did you see MASH, Sir?" questioned a heavily mustached fellow.

Well I had. Right there I decided old "hot lips" Gallagher wasn't taking any shower in MASH quarters this weekend.

While the others went about loading the convoy and packing the toilet paper Sgt. George Grumley took me for a ride in a jeep. Grumley, an attorney and a 1967 Notre Dame graduate, took the occasion to enthuse about artillery units in general and Battery C in particular.

According to him an artillery unit is traditionally a "gentlemen's" group. He said Battery C is the finest and best qualified reserve unit in the country which accounts for men coming from as far away as Phoenix and Ann Arbor to belong to it. At present Battery C is over full strength, but will accept applications.

The jeep ride was harrowing and windy. This was mainly because the army doesn't believe in putting sides on it. I'd heard of "Fall out" but I didn't realize it meant from a jeep. One decidedly inadequate strap was all that was between me, my purse, my peach scarfed head and disaster.

Back at the old Armory Sgt. Jerry Westerfield had the job of outfitting me. Lacking a tape measure (thank God!) or experience in these matters he asked what size I was. Now we had a communications problem. I wasn't surprised to learn they didn't carry 11 Junior Petite. And they didn't issue shirts in size 34 either!

A "Look and tell" evaluation conference among the men produced a pair of fatigue pants which I was told to try on - in the Ladies Room, thank goodness. It was a question of neglecting the waist size and aiming for the hit fit. Young men have enviable narrow hips! Someone's girl watching eye was good; the pants fit.

The helmet was really two in one; one inside the other, full of straps, webbing and sweat bands. On my bathroom scale I later weighed in at 4 lbs. 2 oz. Everytime I put it on and looked at the ground the whole thing fell down and covered my face. If I looked at the ceiling I fell over backwards.

Next came the problem of boots. Jerry came up with a size 10 M. No, I really hadn't expected them to have a 6C with a medium heel. Dark haired Sgt. George Long said he had an extra pair of boots. Now, if any name fitted a man George had it. He is a big-Tall-LONG man - and he wore a 14 1/2 W boot!

I told them if the army didn't mind I'd wear my white sneakers.

"SNEAKERS!"

The army was very polite. But they too seemed to think I was spaced out.

I told them a short lady in a 4 lb. 2 oz. steel pot helmet and 14 1/2 W boots wouldn't fit the army image either.

Having signed for my equipment I arrived home at 11 p.m. in a state of shock over the parting words of the Captain. "My car will pick you up at 4:15 a.m."

It took my family an hour to recover from the hysteria produced by me and my attire.

No. 1 son said, "I don't believe it."

No. 1 daughter said, "No, mother. You can't carry your purse."

No. 2 daughter said, "No, mother. You couldn't carry wallet, keys, lipstick, comb, handkerchief, aspirin bottle and rosary beads in your breast pocket - or in your hip pocket either."

The Peanut Butter Kid cried.

My husband's final remark as he saw me pack my pink curlers at midnight was, "The only thing worse that could happen to the army is for me to go back in."

Frankly, I was having second thoughts. Did I really want to spend the weekend across the state line with 5,000 men?

(NEXT WEEK - Gert rides a C-130 cargo plane to Volk Field.)

Captain Pat Rea of Tinley Park takes part in the recent Wisconsin bivouac of his Army Reserve Battery C unit. Herald Reporter Gertrude Gallagher donned fatigues and helmet and joined the 5,000 men to report on the weekend reserve encampment.

Five students win Illinois scholarships

MIDLOTHIAN — State Representative Don A. Moore (R-Midlothian) has announced the awarding of five legislative scholarships to outstanding high school students in the 9th district. The renewable, one-year scholarships cover all tuition costs at any of 10 Illinois state colleges and universities.

The students selected by Moore to receive 1972-73 scholarships are Vicki Powell of Markham; Randy K. Lindstrom of Tinley Park; and Barbara Gesswein, Mark R. Zischke, and Arthur F. Baron, all of Midlothian.

Moore said that Miss Powell is being graduated from Hillcrest High School where she ranked 81st in her graduating class of 450 students. She will major in journalism at Southern Illinois University. "Vicki's accomplishments are all the more commendable because she has completed her high school work in only three years," Moore noted. Miss Powell lives at 16200 S. Plymouth Dr., in Markham.

Randy Lindstrom, of 6131 W. 167th St. in Tinley Park, is being graduated from Tinley Park High School with a high B grade average. Active in all sports, Randy received the Tribune Sports Award this year in recognition of his abilities as offensive tackle on his school's football team. He will major in liberal arts at Illinois State University.

Barbara Gesswein, of 14735 S. Keeler Ave. in Midlothian, is being graduated this month from Bremen Twp. High School, where she ranked 39th in her graduating class of over 400. President this year of her Future Homemakers Club, Barbara will major in home economics at Illinois State University.

Mark Zischke, of 14925 Lawndale in Midlothian, is being graduated from Bremen Twp. High School with a 3.7 grade average. Also a sports enthusiast, Mark has been on Bremen High's varsity basketball team for the past two years. He will major in forestry at the University of Illinois.

Arthur Baron, of 15113 Kilbourne in Midlothian, is being graduated from Bremen Township High School with a B-plus grade average. A member of the National Honor Society, he plans to major in accounting at the University of Illinois.

"Each of these young people already has distinguished him or herself academically," Moore observed. "I am confident that all will continue along the paths of excellence they have established, and I am pleased to have had a part in making it easier for them to further realize their educational ambitions."

W. R. CHESMORE

NEW LENOX — After 39 years with the Commonwealth Edison Co., Wayne R. Chesmore, 203 N. Elm St. has retired, it was announced by the company.

Most of his career was spent in engineering assignments at the company's local headquarters. At retirement he was staff assistant to the division engineer.

An assistant elder of Trinity Lutheran Church, he is a member of the New Lenox Planning and Zoning Commission. His hobbies are gardening and woodworking.

In World War II he was a major in the U.S. Corps of Engineers. He has worked for the utility company for 39 years and has been married for 39 years. He and his wife, Sylvia, have lived at their present address since 1937. They have a son, Ronald.

OAK FOREST — Sonny Fleming, former radio and television performer, will sing at the 11 a.m. service of the Southwest Bible Church of Oak Forest, on Sunday, June 25.

Fleming worked with Captain Stubby and the Buccaneers for 20 years, being featured on Don McNeil's Breakfast Club and WLS National Barn Dance. Their Decca recording of "BEYOND THE SUNSET" was a million seller.

In January 1959, Fleming faced a crisis time in his life, and through a series of unusual circumstances came to commit his life to Christ. Since then, he has dedicated his life to a service for God.

The public is invited to attend.

TINLEY PARK — The Board of Directors of the Southwest Cook County Cooperative Association for Special Education will meet at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, June 15, at the Central Junior High School, 17248 S. 67th Ave.

TINLEY PARK — The Community Fall Festival Association will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday, June 14, at the Memorial Park fieldhouse. The Association will meet the second Wednesday of each month at the fieldhouse, at 8 p.m.

Newly elected officers are Ed Howlett, president; Troy Wood, first vice president; Corrine Deinet, second vice president; John Panfil, secretary; and Roberta Walters, treasurer. Bob Walters is the 1972 carnival chairman.

All organizations have been encouraged to send a representative to the monthly meetings.

TINLEY PARK — Police arrested two brothers last week on theft charges. Officer William Kosinski responded to a call at 17220 Oconto, where he found Terry Lee Smith, 17, of 6327 W. 177th sitting in his car. Smith told the officer that he had difficulty in getting his car started, but Kosinski was able to start the car the first try. In talking to the complainant Kosinski learned that a youth had been seen entering the complainant's driveway with a gas can.

Further investigation revealed a gas can next to the complainant's car in the driveway with the car's gas cap off and a hose. Smith was taken to the station where he was charged. Later police found John Smith, 18, of 6327 W. 177th, in the area of 17220 Oconto, and took him into custody on the theft charges.

OAK FOREST — Police charged a man with driving while intoxicated, and using the wrong lane, last week.

Officers Richard Fogarty and Jim Vahey were on patrol when they were advised by a service station attendant at 151 and Cicero of an erratic driver.

According to the station attendant a car turned west off 151st and drove into a restaurant parking lot at the Northwest Corner of 151st and Cicero. The car then crossed 151st to the south shoulder, almost striking the attendant's car, before proceeding west bound on LaCrosse.

The two officers went in search of the car and found a car matching the description at 151st and LaCrosse with a man slumped over the wheel and the car parked, but running. Police identified the man as Eric Roberts, 15617 LaCrosse.

JOLIET — Cadet Cottingham, of Mokena, Northwestern Mutual life insurance agent with offices here and in his home town, has been installed as president of the Joliet Life Underwriters Association. The installation dinner was held last Friday night at the Manor Inn. There are approximately 75 members in the underwriter group. Other officers installed were Dick Lacey, State Farm, vice president in charge of programs; Gene Chapman, Western and Southern, vice president in charge of membership; and Al Mance, Mutual of Omaha, secretary and treasurer.

WILL-SOUTH COOK — Ronald E. Olson, conservation teacher of the year for the Will-South Cook Soil and Water Conservation District, was the choice of the Northeast Land Council to be entered in the state contest. Ron is the Resource Conservation instructor at Lincoln-Way Community High School. His entry was selected in the council from others representing ten counties in North-eastern Illinois. The state winner will be announced July 1.

Olson reaches out into several communities in the educational program he has for his students. Conservation of natural resources is covered in all areas of study.

Olson and his students conduct the Lincoln-Way Area Recycling Cooperative. They have assisted the New Lenox Sportsmen's Club in many endeavors, including a massive clean-up of Hickory Creek. Olson is currently working with the Soil Conservation Service in controlling erosion on ditch banks and in renovating the school pond.

Bremen Towne elects directors

TINLEY PARK — Executive board of directors were elected at the May 25 meeting of the Bremen Towne Estates Condominium Association. Elected for six month terms were Jack Rogers, president; Frank Sidler, secretary; and Kenneth Palm, John Maus, John Cochonour, Byron Payne Jr., Gerald Bouvier and Pat O'Brien, directors.

Baptist revival has evangelist

TINLEY PARK — "Crusade for Christ" is the theme of a week of meetings to be held at the First Baptist Church of Tinley Park, 7025 W. 179th St. Jimmy Nettles, evangelist from Fort Worth, Tex., will preach at 7:30 p.m. each weekday the week of June 18-24. Sunday services will be at 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. Special music will be provided each night by the church choir and special guests. A nursery service will also be available.

The Rev. Nettles pastored for 11 years in Texas, Illinois and California. He has been in full-time evangelism for the last five years and has preached in 16 states.

The Rev. Don Allen, pastor of the church, has invited the public to attend.

The executive board will function as the representative of all of the residents of the Condominium Association, with Allied Homes, Inc., and specifically detail committee functions to improve communication and effective management within the association.

Representatives of Allied Homes, Inc. attended the meeting and indicated responsiveness to working with the board with regard to policy and improvement of overall communication.

An executive board meeting was held

June 1 to initiate organization of procedures, and policies, with representatives of Allied Homes.

Woodcocks join

PEOTONE — Bate-Carsten Real Estate of Peotone has announced that June and Herbert Woodcock of Manhattan have joined their sales staff. June will be devoting her time to the sale of homes in Manhattan and the surrounding area. Herbert will devote his time to farm and land sales.

Auto chase ends in crash

FRANKFORT — A high speed chase that started in Frankfort early Monday morning ended with arrest of a Tinley Park man. David Riley, 8720 W. 170th, was charged with speeding, reckless driving and attempting to elude a police officer.

The chase ended when Riley's car struck a utility pole on 171st street. During the chase a number of local police units as well as the county joined in the pursuit.

Frankfort officer Wayne Mangum was on patrol when he noticed a car that had been in the area a number of times, and appeared to be going no place.

Wehn Mangum attempted to stop the car the driver took off at a high rate of speed north on Route 45. The pursuit went east on 179th to 94th ave., and then north on 94th to 171st street heading west. The car attempted to turn and go east on 171st when it struck the pole.

Officer Mangum pulled the driver from the car. Riley was taken to Silver Cross Hospital where he was treated and released. According to police Riley's car reached speeds of 105 mph during the chase.

BEST BET SINCE RIVA RIDGE!

When your Crescent Newspaper Carrier comes to your door to collect for the papers he delivered in June, pay him. He will (or is it a she?) give you a receipt that you can redeem for a classified ad . . . free. You spend either 40¢ or 65¢* for a month's home delivery of your concerned, local Crescent Newspaper and in return you get a receipt worth $3.00.

Invest your $3.00 on a "Big Results" Crescent want ad to sell that "white elephant" that's been collecting dust in the basement or attic and you'll come out money ahead. Crescent want ads make good sense (and dollars) even if you have to pay for them.

*Depending on whether your paper is delivered once or twice a week.
